Dan Miner reveals his 35-year battle vs. depression

By Gordon Woodworth
Chronicle News Editor

Four years after attempting suicide, WCKM radio personality Dan Miner sat down with The Chronicle to talk about his 35-year struggle with depression, and how getting professional help turned his life around.

"I never thought I'd see 50," he said, sitting in the press box at the Glens Falls Civic Center before an Adirondack Flames hockey game.

The long-time hockey public address announcer and White-

More than halfway through an 8,000-mile, 2½-year international horseback ride, a chance meeting has resulted in Bernice Ende and her two horses spending the winter in Fort Edward.

"It's rather serendipitous to stay in an old historic feed store, the Nicholson Feed Store," Ms. Ende told The Chronicle. "Fort history."

Ms. Ende, 60, who calls herself "the old lady long rider," is staying with Darleen Lundgren. They met by chance on a Sunday morning in early September.

"I was riding by and noticed her beautiful yard, and she was sitting on the porch," Ms. Ende said. "I told her she had a beautiful yard and she asked me if I

Says 'environmental extremists' oppose GF water project

To the Editor:

The recent article in The Chronicle about the group opposing the bottling plant in the former St. Alphonsus Church really fired me up. It is another example of environmental ex-
