Fullers, Phish & Dead

By Matt Fuller
Chronicle News Editor

Editor's Note: Matt and Nancy Fuller of Queensbury attended the Grateful Dead's "Fare Thee Well" final concerts in Chicago July 3-5. The Fullers are long-time "Dead-heads" and fans of the band Phish. Matt, a Fort Edward native, is an attorney and partner at Meyer & Fuller in Lake George. Nancy, originally from Warrensburg, is a speech therapist at Shenendehowa High School. They also own Fountain Square Outfitters store in downtown Glens Falls.

Tortola, British Virgin Islands last February. We had traveled there to meet up with our "phriends" Mike and Kristie Wilson from Nantucket. That day, our final day on island and Nancy's birthday, saw us come upon those once in a lifetime moments. Walking along the beach, we ran into Trey Anastasio and his lovely wife Susan enjoying the morning rays. An introduction by a giddy long-time Phish fan (me) led to about an hour or so reveling in

LG's King George Fishing Derby this weekend

By Gordon Woodworth
Chronicle News Editor

Organizers are expecting hundreds of entrants in this weekend's inaugural King George Fishing Derby on Lake George. It offers $15,000 in prize money. "We have well over 100 entries," Lake George Village Mayor Robert Blais said Monday. "We had about 60 entries in the early registration period, and we've had another 60 or so since." Jeff "J.J." Johnson, the derby's lead organizer, said Monday that

Expanded their 1907 GF house with a rustic industrial look

By Sandra Hutchinson
Chronicle Features Editor

Tony Aurilio and Amity Luce-Aurilio have been gradually transforming their traditional Glens Falls home into an eye-catching design statement. Inside, the couple has been painting, texturing walls, changing flooring and lighting, all with what designers might call a rustic industrial look.

They've also changed up the exterior in unexpected and novel ways. The house, on Sanford

Outside, the addition features 'wide plank siding,' a metal standing seam roof with visible rafters beneath, and a base of corrugated metal. The interior has a vintage barn door on a slider, a magnetic chalkboard and a back wall that will be covered with 1840s bricks from a razed structure in Whitehall. Chronicle photo/Mark Frost
