Her quest: The perfect paint color

By Sandra Hutchinson
Chronicle Associate Publisher

I'm a woman on a mission — to find the right paint color for my kitchen cabinets. This endeavor — nay, obsession — has me poring over color charts, paint strips, paint chips, pictures in magazines and books, and wooden boards that have been painted as samples showing what a particular color would look like on a raised panel door, in my kitchen. My friend Tim, who is doing the actual sanding, priming and painting of my cabinets, is a kind and patient man. Fortunately, we have a month or two before his schedule will open up and enable him to do the work at our

Cruz, Trump & GOP doom

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

Until two weeks ago, I thought Donald Trump was a lock for the Republican Presidential nomination. Now I think there's a very good chance he won't get it. Of course, if that happens, the Donald's response will be to try to take the Republican Party down in flames — maybe even literally.

New York primary is Tuesday, April 19

Rich, privileged and entitled since the day he was born, Trump would throw a tantrum for the ages. If he's denied the nod, his rival Ted Cruz is the immediate beneficiary, especially given the party rules that dictate only a candidate who's won at least eight primaries can be the nominee. Only Cruz and Trump meet that standard, and I don't expect Ted to be any more amenable than Donald to being bypassed. Cruz hasn't exactly been Washington's consummate team play-
