Riding an international rock-climbing wave, Rocksport Indoor Climbing Gym is relocating this spring from the Sports Page on Quaker Road to their own $1.7-million, 8,400-square-foot facility on Carey Road in Queensbury. A grand opening is tentatively scheduled for early April.

"In the last three years, our business has grown so fast that we can't stay where we are," said Tom Rosecrans, a retired Queensbury High School social studies teacher who started Rocksport back in 1992.

"We have 300 to 350 climbers a week now, and our new facility will be eight times bigger and twice as tall," said Mr. Rosecrans. "At Sports Page we have a 25-foot climbing wall. Here it will be 50 feet tall."

The building will have a private room for birthday parties and corporate outings, a classroom to accommodate SUNY
