Throng for women's march in Glens Falls

By Cathy DeDe

Chronicle Managing Editor

Saturday's Women's March in Glens Falls, in conjunction with the signature one in Washington, D.C. and others around the country and around the world, drew a crowd variously estimated at 800 to 1,500 people.

My own guess is upwards of 800, but fewer than 1,000.

It was an impressive showing from where I stood at Centennial Circle.

When the marchers started coming down both sides of Warren Street from their starting point at the Planned Parenthood building, they just kept coming.

"Donald Trump has inadvertently set off a resurgence of the women's rights movement," said Enid Mastrianni, who originated the Glens Falls march. "I was stunned" at the turnout, she said. Photo/Lisa Catalfamo

They filled Centennial Circle, several bodies deep, beginning at the corner of Warren and Ridge, curved down and around nearly to the Burger King entrance on Glen Street and to Congresswoman Elise Stefanik's office on the other side (no coincidence), then up and around to Hudson Avenue.

They were women, men, children, families, couples, groups of friends. Many carried pre-printed signs supporting Planned Parenthood, or hand-made cardboard signs with all sorts of clever messages touting women's rights, the Affordable Care Act, human rights, anti-Trump sentiments.

Many wore T-shirts with politi-

Trump the unifier

By Mark Frost

Chronicle Editor

Can we at least agree on this: President Donald Trump is a tremendous unifier. His supporters have never been more unified. Same goes for his detractors.

Unites his foes & unites his supporters

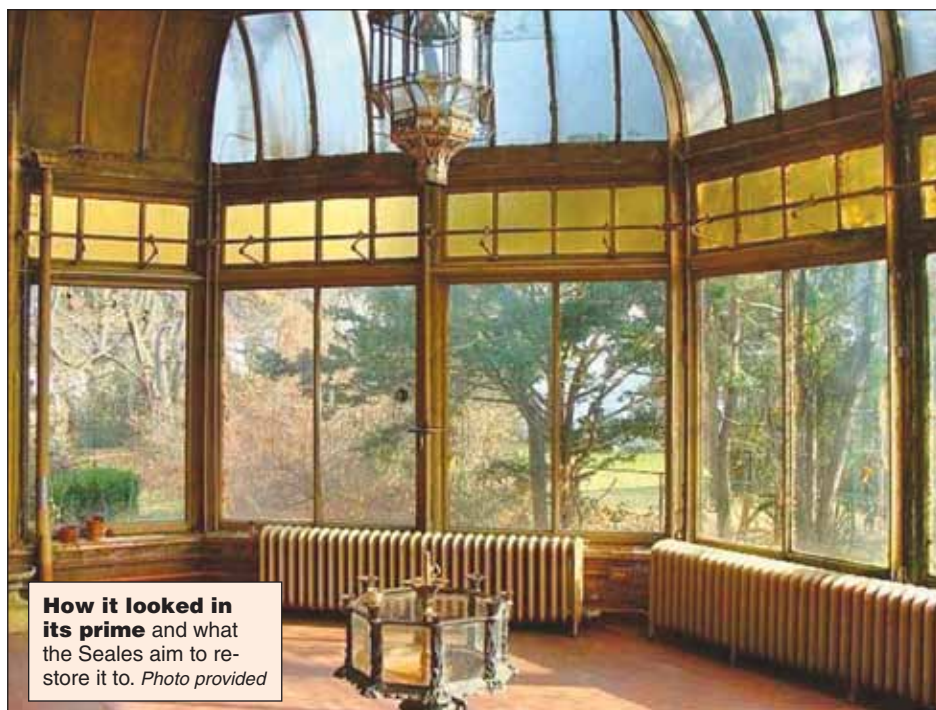

Not just unified but galvanized — eager to act. Thus, Saturday's Women's March here, in Washington and elsewhere were huge events. Our managing editor Cathy DeDe's video of the Glens Falls march has 33,400 Facebook views and reached more than 70,000 people — including some who criticized

Restoring Lang Rig's conservatory

Editor's Note: Michael Seale bought the historic but deteriorating Victorian mansion overlooking Crandall Park Pond last year for $395,000. His wife Melissa Seale (who incidentally is studying to be a psychiatric nurse practitioner) writes a blog about the ongoing restoration efforts on the 7,000 square foot house and gave us permission to re-publish her latest entry here.

Special to The Chronicle

One of my favorite features of Lang Rig is the beautiful two-story conservatory that sits off the main foyer on the first floor.
