A 122-year-old Rushton rowboat, a classic Old Town canvas-covered canoe, vintage newspaper items about the early days of boating on Lake George, and military uniforms worn by local veterans are among the exhibits at the newly enlarged Bolton Historical Society Museum.

Eight canoes and rowboats are displayed in the museum's $1.1-million, 2,648-square-foot expansion, that was celebrated with an opening reception on May 26. The museum is situated at Rogers Memorial Park in Bolton.

"We're very grateful to the town for helping us build this, and to the local people" who loaned or donated boats and uniforms, said Bolton Historical Society president Edmund Scheiber. "It's South Glens Falls native Russ Faden owns 16 Subway restaurants between Queensbury and Clifton Park.

"By far, our best one" is in Queensbury east of Northway Exit 18, which explains its move two months ago from 110 Main Street to the higher-profile new building that Mr. Faden has developed at 75 Main.

"I grew up in South Glens Falls" and he was a police officer
