

Beyond the echo chamber

By Mark Frost
 Chronicle Editor

My reading of right now is that no political position goes unchallenged. Thus, it is no surprise that during last weekend's Women's March that particularly expressed resistance to the President, a Trump fan in Centennial Circle brandished a banner declaring "Make America Great Again."

Opinion/analysis

On The Chronicle Facebook page, where our managing editor Cathy DeDe posted video of the march, the divide was much more strongly displayed.

The 152 comments reflect diametrically opposite views, and the language got nasty enough that we censored some of it.

There were 308 likes and dislikes expressed and more than

Larry Dudley's touted novel

By Cathy DeDe
 Chronicle Managing Editor

Lawrence "Larry" Dudley of Glens Falls has written a novel that combines World War II spy thriller with modern political overtones.

New York Station launches this Friday night, Jan. 26, at 7 p.m. with Mr. Dudley doing a reading and signing at Northshire Bookstore in Saratoga Springs.

The novel, published by Oregon-based Blackstone, is generat-
