The Chronicle talked to area boat pros on the eve of the 13th annual Great Upstate Boat Show at the Adirondack Sports Complex (The Dome) off Sherman Avenue in Queensbury this Friday through Sunday, March 2-4.

"Last year was a fantastic year for everyone, and it looks like we're going to be on the same path for 2018, for sure," said Craig Kennedy at Schroom Lake Marina, a show participant.

"The industry has the wind at its back and is being propelled favorably by rising real estate sales, a strong stock market and an improving economy," said Joel Holden, who organizes the boat show for the Eastern NY Marine

Frost too negative in interview of Stefanik

To the Editor:

This is just an observation. I read your interview with [Congresswoman] Elise Stefanik. The questions... especially the wording of the questions and the ones that referenced Trump... were so negative and one-sided I couldn't believe it. Negative, negative, negative.

Congrats to Elise for responding in a very honest and professional manner. If it was me, I probably would have walked out.

And, btw, I always considered Mark Frost to be pretty neutral in his reporting. He sounded like CNN in this interview.

Mark,

I see from the Feb. 22 issue of The Chronicle that you had an opportunity to interview Ms. Stefanik. You asked some pertinent questions and received the rote, pre-packaged responses
