

What ‘300 million data points’ are finding about Lake George

By Gordon Woodworth
Chronicle News Editor

“I can assure you as of right now no one is doing anything close to what we are doing on Lake George,”

IBM senior vice president Dr. John E. Kelly told the FUND for Lake George’s annual meeting on Saturday, July 7, at the Sagamore Hotel.

Dr. Kelly, who has a summer home on Assembly Point and is a FUND trustee, gave an update on the Jefferson Project, the FUND’s collaborative effort with IBM and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute to learn more about Lake George. “It is now by far the smartest lake in the world,” he said.

In its fourth year of a planned 10-year run, the Jefferson Project now has 52 monitoring platforms on Lake George, including weather stations, tributary stations, soil sensors and multi-purpose platforms. “Those 52 platforms carry over 500 sensors in the lake, around the lake, throughout the depth of the lake,” he

Credits Trump, faults media

To the Editor:

I read with great disdain the letter to you by Mr. Barthold encouraging citizens of this country to apply stamps with our flag on it upside-down to signal the U.S. in distress.

I know of Mr. Barthold to be of extreme intelligence and I am surprised that his thoughts are not above the biased and unprofessional liberal left-wing media news coverage that consumes our news everyday.

I base one’s successes, in this case President Trump, on factual information, not what is recorded falsely. Unemployment is at record lows in this country, with

Letters to The Chronicle

In defense of Youtheatre

Dear Editor,

I’m writing in response to the letter to the editor regarding the planned production of Chicago by Lake George Youtheatre. As a former member, and a parent of a current member, I have dual-perspective on the issue.

While I understand and empathize with Ms. Mason’s stance, I feel that it is lacking in due diligence. Yes, the topics
