Their 4-month cruise cut short

Paul and Susan Arnold of Argyle got halfway around the world, but then had to high-tail it back to U.S. Meanwhile their farm is thriving. ▶ 14

How hard will it hit us?

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

Aren't we all just kind of holding our breath, wondering when and if Covid-19 will come at northern New York with anything like the death and devastation it's brought to New York City?

A 95-year-old Saratoga County woman died last Friday at Glens Falls Hospital, becoming the area's first and — as I write this on Tuesday — only fatality from the pandemic. Hospital

100,000-200,000 U.S deaths forecast; NYC is at epicenter

Can't just feel bad!

By Mark Frost Chronicle Editor

Saturday, like countless others, I went to Moreau Lake State Park for a hike. The parking lot and roadway were filled with vehicles, as was the one open loop to (closed) campsites. People need to get out. It's the most therapeutic outlet we're allowed. I said to a man fishing on the shore: "At least you can still do that." "Thank God," he replied. While the lot was crowded, it was easy keeping required social distance. People here took the 6-foot rule to heart. Precious dose of nature and normalcy.

Don Lehman says thanks after leaving Post-Star

To the editor,
For more than 28 years, I had the privilege of covering local news for The Post-Star. I say privilege because it really was just that, a privilege to meet so many great people and tell so many interesting and important stories while trying to keep the public informed.

That newspaper tenure ended last week, when I accepted a job with Warren County. It was
