Push quick-ens to reopen

By Mark Frost
 Chronicle Editor

Warren County Administrator Ryan Moore issued a very upbeat assessment Tuesday night about progress being made toward meeting New York State's criteria to start reopening businesses.

"As of to-night," Mr. Moore wrote, "Warren County now meets all seven criteria on our own steam."

"This does not mean we can

Warren County: We meet all 7 NYS criteria & we think Region soon will Teacher: Buildings closed, but school is still happening!

Hello,
 I'm so glad The Chronicle has continued through this time! I read it religiously every weekend. It made me feel normal that I could at least read it online even when I wasn't going out to the store to pick up a copy. I still prefer the "real thing," but online is a nice option to have during this time or when I'm traveling and unable to pick up a copy. I did want to comment, though, that Andrew Cuomo didn't "end the school year." He just said the build-

Faults Fort Hudson & Mark's article on it

Hi Mark,
 My letter is in response to your "Inside Scoop" interview with Fort Hudson CEO Andrew Cruikshank in last week's edition (May 7). While I certainly empathize with the terrible situation that he is forced to address, I don't believe that his apparent mishandling of quarantine procedures should allow him a softball interview by you.

I was quite surprised when

Poughkeepsie reader who summers on LG: Beware COVID this summer with tourism

To the Editor:
 Another great edition (May 7). For those that are complaining about too many articles about COVID, I say nonsense. It is very important for people to know what is going on. I think that although the numbers are low now, this summer they will increase with the increase of

DEC: Docks going in at LG

By Mark Frost
 Chronicle Editor

Camping is still banned because of the COVID emergency, but the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation is going ahead with installation of the docks on the public islands and shoreline of Lake George.

"DEC has installed approximately 40% of the docks at sites in each of the three sections — Glen Island, Long Island and Narrow Island — of the Lake George Islands Campground all the way up to the Waltonian Islands," DEC spokesman David Winchell said in response to a Chronicle inquiry.

"DEC will continue to install docks as weather and other staff assignments allowed.

"The campground is not open

Golfer, 77, to NYS: Please let us use motorized golf carts

To the Editor:
 I have e-mailed the governor's office, my assembly person and the NYSGA. The governor's office and the assembly person both stated that golf courses are a non-essential business but made some exception for opening the courses.

At first (April 1) golf carts were allowed to be used, then
