Cathy's rotten turkey saga

By Cathy DeDe

Chronicle Managing Editor

Here is the woeful tale of a turkey in Glens Falls.

Privileged to live close enough that I can usually walk to work I sometimes see little things along the way and post pictures on social media — abandoned love notes in the grass, a rubber clown nose on the edge of the road, a Gummy Bear face-down on the sidewalk, the splayed remains of an orange that was run over by a car.

Nothing to date compares to the turkey.

Two weeks back, on March 8, in the middle of a neighborhood sidewalk: One whole turkey.

It was maybe 15 pounds, raw

JG3 in the Sweet 16

Underdog Syracuse University is in the final 16 teams vying for the NCAA Men's College Basketball Championship — and guard Joe Girard III is right in the middle of it — as seen in the jubilation after Sunday's 75-72 win over West Virginia. JG3's 12 first-half points on four 3-pointers kept the Orange on track until Buddy Boeheim got it going. #11 seed Syracuse next plays #2 seed Houston Saturday, March 27, at 9:55 p.m., win or go home. More pix, page 6

Watch-dog gets LDC seat

By Cathy DeDe

Chronicle Managing Editor

Citizen watchdog Travis Whitehead has been appointed to the board of the Warren County Local Development Corporation by Board of Supervisors chair Rachel Seeber. She confirmed it did not require board approval.

"Mr. Whitehead has been an active and informative member of our community with an incredible passion for public service. I am very excited to be able to appoint him and very appreciative that he has accepted this position to the LDC board," Ms. Seeber says.

Plea to NYS: Let us visit Mom in Fort Hudson

Editor:

Those of us with loved ones in nursing homes have been patiently waiting for visitation to resume. Personally, I have not been able to visit my Mother at Fort Hudson since December 18, 2020.

With vaccinations in place, lower infection rates, and no active COVID cases among residents for almost a month, it's time to reopen visitation, right? Wrong. New York State has not
