LG: Boat conked out; on to rocks; our fate

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

Between the constant rain of early summer and the busy-ness of our business and lives, we'd only made it out on our boat twice this season. Weeks ago.

Saturday, with blue sky perfection, we finally ventured back out on Lake George.

It was late afternoon. We figured the rush would be over; we'd find an ideal picnic spot.

All was good as we reached the Narrows. I was driving extra slowly because two passengers had conditions that mandated "no bouncing."

I steered toward Paradise Bay. Then literally I felt powerless. It took me a few seconds to realize the engine had quit. I figured I must have turned it off some-

Estate sale & auction: The Woods

By Cathy DeDe
Chronicle Managing Editor

The contents of the Queensbury home of Josie Beckos Wood, "the late Mrs. Charles R. Wood," will be sold in an estate sale and auction later this month.

"So many rare and desirable items we will be selling," says Mark Lawson, who will administer both events. "It's a world class collection." He told The Chronicle, "I have never done this volume of this high quality objects in one sale. It's just amazing."

The three-day estate sale at Mrs. Wood's home will run Friday to Sunday, July 23-25. It's

They grow mushrooms

By Zander Frost
Chronicle Staff Writer

If you've been to the Glens Falls Farmer's Market, you've probably noticed Adirondack Mycology, a mushroom cultivation business owned by 2012 Glens Falls High graduate Jaryn Deshane and his fiancée Savannah Murtaugh. She's from Canandaigua originally. They're both 26.

"When we started growing mushrooms and everything, it was mostly just for growing our own food," says Jaryn. "Like we had a vegetable garden, we foraged for wild mushrooms. And that's kind of how I got into all this. And, you know, wanting to have more than what we could find in the wild. And once I started growing them, I was like, wow...I'm good at it."

Now they grow mushrooms in a 1,000 square foot out-
