GF Hospital busy: Covid surge; more

By Cathy DeDe

Chronicle Managing Editor

Twenty months on, Glens Falls Hospital's Covid hospitalizations equal or surpass the highest of the pandemic. Tuesday's count was 44 admissions, seven in the Intensive Care Unit (ICU).

Most chilling, "just between November 10 and 16," Glens Falls Hospital had four Covid fatalities, reports Hillary Alycon, the hospital's Director of Infection Prevention. "That's consistent, every week."

Beyond Covid, hospitalizations are up in general, while staffing is down (more about that later in this story).

"The ER [Emergency Room] is busier than a year ago," said Ray Agnew, Vice President of Community Engagement.

"Behavioral health [and] we're seeing more people admitted with respiratory illnesses such as pneumonia." Even:

"More babies are being born."

"Just in raw numbers," Mr. Agnew said Tuesday, "today we

HF School went virtual for 2 days due to bus staff shortage; parents transporting now

By Zander Frost
Chronicle Staff Writer

Hudson Falls Central School District had to shift all its in-person classes to virtual, first on Friday, Nov. 12, and then also on Monday, Nov. 15.

On Monday, the district said it would reopen for in-person school on Tuesday, but not be able to provide transportation.

"We're dealing with some staffing shortages that are making it so we can't get our kids in for in-person learning," Superintendent Dan Ward told The Chronicle Friday. "The main obstacle right now is transportation staff."

The Chronicle asked Friday if parents will need to drive their children to school.

"A lot of our families are doing that now," Mr. Ward said. "Certainly, we're looking at having to ask more families to drive their children or walk their children if they're close by if possible, but we're not there yet."

Unfortunately, by Monday, the school reached that point. Parents were asked to transport students to school. Those who couldn't get to school went back to doing school virtually on the Internet.

Staff shortfalls is an ongoing problem, Mr. Ward said. "Every day a substitute shortage....we have an overall staffing shortage, just some positions that we have not been able to fill. They aren't causing us to be closed...but certainly it's an overall shortage."

"And it's, I would say, not unique to Hudson Falls. I think that's all schools in our region."

What's causing the shortage? "I don't have any hard data. I want to say it that way," Mr. Ward said. "But I do know that many schools operate on retired folks for some of these positions that are considered part-time. And when COVID hit some folks decided that they were going to leave the workforce, and some of them haven't come back yet."

"So many schools in our region are living on the edge," Mr. Ward said.

"Every single day we're a couple employees, in many cases, from making the difference between being able to have all of our kids in person or having to do different models where kids are not in person..."

"Our staff...across all positions, top to bottom, and our district, people are working really hard to help us get kids in school to provide the best education we can, despite all the challenge."

Mr. Ward said, "Cases are on the rise in our region, and certainly in Washington County. And anything that families and community members can do to slow the spread. We would be very appreciative because that's gonna help us keep school open."

He said, "Between yesterday and today, 17 positive cases between students and staff. It's positive cases, as well as people being symptomatic. And people awaiting COVID testing."

Chronicle Managing Editor Cathy DeDe writes: The New York State Public High School Girls Volleyball Championships return to Cool Insuring Arena on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 20 & 21.

"We are excited to again host the 2021 NYS Girls Volleyball Finals," said Jeff Mead, executive director the arena. "We missed this event last year as it was cancelled due to COVID-19."

"This event fills our arena for two days, but just as important, it fills many local hotels, restaurants, and retail stores," Mr. Mead said. "Any time we can host an event that also benefits our community partners, we feel it's a win win."

He said 20 teams will compete, with about 15 players per team.

"We expect about 2,000 fans," Mr. Mead said. "I know the Q Hotel and The Fairfield are both sold out," referring to the Queensbury and its sister hotel at Exit 18. "Others will also feel a positive impact."

Five area teams are competing, including Shenendowa and Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake.

Gug’s bar won’t open for Thanks-giving, if at all

Chronicle editor Mark Frost writes: Guglielmi’s Bar on Haskell Avenue off Warren Street, Glens Falls, typically opens for the season to hot bands and a packed house on Thanksgiving weekend. It won’t be the case this year — and it’s looking like it won’t open at all.

Owner Mike Rios — who has run this long-standing family business in the off-season of his family’s Ridge Terrace Restaurant — told The Chronicle, “Unfortunately I just can’t do it — at this time anyways.” He said they’re still closing up the restaurant, doing floors and such.

But that’s only part of the issue. He says of Gug’s, “There’s so much to do. It kind of needs a total shakedown. It’s been closed up for so long,” because it never opened last year either — Covid.

“Now being shut down a couple of years it’s really starting from scratch.

Plus Mr. Rios said he’s 61 years old. “It’s a lot of work, a lot of late night hours” with limited staff. “I can’t hire anybody to work,” he said. “There’s just not enough money in it. The pie is not that big. Then I got to leave in April just when it starts rockin’.”

“I don’t want to throw good money after bad,” said Mr. Rios, though he adds, “it’s still up in the air.” He said chances of his opening are “slim — 70-30 against me,” but “you never know.”

Thanks for reading our paper!

On a nice roll at Stewart's

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

Last Thursday, Veterans Day, I had 16 Stewart's Shops along my delivery route. At a series of them I had serendipitous, sublime encounters. It started simply — at Stewart's and elsewhere — when so many people were polite and courteous. Some held the door open for me as I hauled in my bundles. Sometimes I opened the door for others, who thanked me every time. People were in a good mood. Weather was good. Kids were off from school. Plus this is how so many people here just are, why I never left.

At the Stewart's in Moreau just north of Northway Exit 17, as I started to unzip my bundles, I thought I was blocking the way of a mom and her daughter. I apologized and made room for them. The smiling mom said, "We're waiting for you." I handed her a Chronicle. "Thank you," she told me. I said, "Thank you for reading The Chronicle." She and her daughter smiled and the mom said, "It's how we find what we're doing this weekend." Music to our ears.

In front of the Schuylerville Stewart's, two kids, probably a sister and little brother, headed inside, maybe for the 50¢ ice cream cones? They both wore Santa caps. "Is it Christmas already?" I asked. "No," said the girl walking by quickly. "We just like wearing the hats!"

In the Greenwich Stewart's, I'd been wanting to ask for weeks about the always nicely painted windows. "Who's the artist?" I said to the clerk. The young woman enthused, "Oh, that's my manager!" I said, "She's very good." The clerk said, "Yes, she's very talented."

At the Cambridge Stewart's, I hadn't been in there in a long time and I went prowling to see if I could find a better spot for The Chronicle to be displayed. There was a line of customers and the first man in line kept me in line: "Goes right by the phone there, buddy."

Man, I love northern New York. And Stewart's, too.

Absentees flip Greenwich race

Absentee votes tallied on Tuesday, Nov. 16, apparently flipped the result of the Greenwich Town Supervisor's race. Incumbent Don Ward led James Nolan, 696-691, on election night. But Mr. Nolan garnered 49 absentee votes to 29 for Mr. Ward, so UNOFFICIALLY James Nolan wins, 740 to 725.

Greenwich town council races were close but absentees didn't change the result. Thomas Graves (717+55 absentees = 772) and James Mumby (686+49 absentees = 735) led on election night and won after absentees, UNOFFICIALLY, over Julie Sipperly (678+23 absentees = 701) and Liv Thygesen (672+27 absentees = 699).

In Glens Falls, absentees tightened the margin but Dan Bruno apparently still defeated John Reilly by nine votes, 148-139, to retain the Ward 4 seat for Warren County Supervisor.

For Queensbury's Ward 2 town council race, Harrison Freer's 63 absentee votes to Dave Deeb's 49 widened Mr. Freer's victory margin to 728-695.

In Lake Luzerne's race for Town Supervisor, where incumbent Gene Merlino waged a write-in effort against Republican nominee Dan Waterhouse, Warren County election officials said Tuesday they will hand count the write-in ballots Friday, Nov. 19, but Mr. Merlino told The Chronicle previously there aren't enough to overcome Mr. Waterhouse's lead.

What started as one snack, has grown with Food For Thought now supplying snacks to 22 schools in Warren, Washington, and Saratoga counties. As the recipient of the award, the Sunmark Foundation presented Kelly with a $2,500 donation.

The credit union's charitable foundation banded out its community service leader award to Kelly Stevens with the group Food For Thought.

County tax sale nets just $18,000 for Mullen site but other parcels bring $980,000

By Cathy DeDe
Chronicle Managing Editor

Warren County's annual property auction was disappointing as to proceeds on sale of a high-profile parcel on Bay Road, but "very good" overall, nearing $1 million on 24 general properties that were offered, says Lexie Delurey, director of the County's Real Property Tax Services.

The bid on 275 Bay Road where the dilapidated Mullen Iron Works long stood — between the County Bikeway and the Becton Dickinson medical device plant — came in at $18,000.

That is far short of the $344,000 owed in back taxes and the approximately $141,000 the County spent to demolish the building and do some environmental cleanup on the site, Ms. Delurey said.

It's short even of the $68,700 the Board hoped to realize, members of the Environmental Concerns & Real Property Tax Services Committee said at their meeting last week.

Still the committee voted to accept the bid. The full board will consider the resolution at its meeting on Friday, Nov. 19.

Some members balked at the low return, but Dennis Dickinson, committee chair and Lake George Supervisor, said, "The property went out to the public and came back with $18,000. To me, that says that the $68,700 is not a valid figure."

"We didn't get what we wanted but let's move on," said Queensbury At-Large supervisor Brad Magowan.

Claudia Braymer, Glens Falls Ward 3 county supervisor, agreed. "I am disappointed that the bid was not higher. You all know I am all for parks and trails," she said but added that the Mullen property belongs "back on the tax rolls."

Queensbury Supervisor John Strough had pushed for the county to use the parcel as a parking and visitor center for the bike trail but gained little traction.

Glens Falls Ward 2 Supervisor Peter McDevitt said, "This seems like a very low amount of money for a property that sits at the crossroads of our two largest communities. What will go there?"

Glens Falls Ward 4 Supervisor Dan Bruno said he didn't the City would buy it, having already purchased the former Glens Falls Tennis & Swim Club for a proposed park and aiming to buy the 333 Glen Street green space for a park, too.

The high bidder at close on October 30 was Hina Asad of Niskayuna, identified on the auction record as "nyinvest." Mr. Asad did not return a phone call by press time. A Web search shows affiliation with Broadway Realty in New York City.

Presuming the sale is approved, the Town of Queensbury Zoning and Planning Boards would have approval of future use of the site, Ms. Delurey notes.

One supervisor expressed hope "a young entrepreneur could do something good with the property."

Taxes hadn't been paid since 1995 on the Mullen property, said Ms. Delurey, noting that she inherited the issue when she came on as director in 2012.

"Prior to that it sat there and nobody did anything," she said. It was owned by J. David Mullen, who passed away in 2013, and then by his estate.

Last spring the Iron Works building was demolished and the Department of Environmental Conservation signed off that "no further remediation was needed," Ms. Delurey added.

Separately, 24 of 25 parcels sold at the county tax auction on October 16, netting nearly $393,000 in outstanding taxes. "This was definitely a good auction," Ms. Delurey says. She said the number of sales was "the normal flow."

What was "good," she said, was total sales of $928,100.

After defraying back taxes, and satisfying liens such as funds owed to Medicare, nursing homes and such, Ms. Delurey said, 25 percent of the remainder goes to a Reserve Testing Fund the county created to help pay for remediations not covered by the prior owner — such as in the case of the Mullen property.

"It's a great tool to have," Ms. Delurey said. "People would like to see us go after the owners, but a lot of times that won't get anywhere. We set it up for this reason, to help county taxpayers not have to foot the bill."

About that striking stand of yellow trees as you go east into Cambridge

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

Every week delivering Chronicles in southern Washington County, we drive from Greenwich to Cambridge on Route 372. In the autumn, our eyes always go to a stand of bright orange-gold trees on a hillside entering downtown Cambridge. I've always wondered: What are those trees? Last Thursday, Nov. 11, I decided finally to try to find out. I turned right on to county Route 59, and looked for a safe spot to pull over to take a photo of the trees. A little driveway presented itself and I pulled in. I took the photo you see here. As I returned to my car, I spotted a man in his yard at the house maybe 40 yards away that the driveway circled around to. He turned out to be a man named Beaver Ross and we had a nice conversation. He didn't know specifically the species of tree, but he knew who could tell me. "Call Art Center," he said. Friday I called Mr. Center. The trees turned out to be Japanese Larch — and they're the result of a community effort. Back when Cambridge had its own hospital — the now shuttered Mary McClellan, Mr. Center said supporters wanting to raise money for the hospital came up with a tree planting project on this land the hospital owned. Mr. Center said, "We had John Raymond, a forester, take a look at that 10 acres. He said it should be cleared off. He recommended planting trees which are used for plywood. "We got volunteers to clear the land. It didn't cost the hospital anything.

Japanese Larch, planted 20 years ago as money maker for hospital, now closed

"We hand-planted the trees." When was this?, The Chronicle asked. "Gosh, Mark," said Mr. Center, "it must have been 20 years ago." Twenty years was also the project's an-

Larry Elmen the new Warren Co. Attorney

The Warren County Board of Supervisors voted on Nov. 5 to hire Larry Elmen of Glens Falls as the County Attorney. He was to begin his tenure Monday, Nov. 8.

"I am honored and humbled by the trust placed in me by the Warren County Board of Supervisors," Mr. Elmen was quoted in the county press release.

Rachel Seeber, Chairwoman of the Warren County Board of Supervisors, was quoted: "Larry Elmen brings a wealth of experience and comprehensive knowledge at all levels of government. This experience along with his time in private practice makes Mr. Elmen an ideal selection for our County Attorney, perhaps the most challenging position in our county."

The county press release explained that the Warren County Attorney is the legal advisor for the Board of Supervisors and county officials and is responsible for representing Warren County in all civil lawsuits and administrative hearings in which the county is a party.

It said Mr. Elmen is entering his 27th year practicing law. His career began in the public sector as a captain and trial attorney for the U.S. Army's 82nd Airborne Division. He was a prosecutor for the Manhattan District Attorney's Office, and was an Assistant Attorney General with the New York Attorney General's Office.

He is returning to the public sector following 15 years in private practice where he was a partner in a local law firm before opening and operating his own law firm during the past five years.

Mr. Elmen replaces Mary Kissane, who left the county attorney position in April for a position in private practice.

"I am grateful to be joining the great team already in place at the Warren County Attorney's Office and look forward to supporting them in providing the highest quality legal advice to the Board of Supervisors and our County Department leadership team," Mr. Elmen was quoted. He was the Republican nominee for the part-time City of Glens Falls Judgeship to which Nikki Moreschi was re-elected earlier this month.

"After 10 years," said Mr. Center, "we'd take out every third tree. Five years later take half of what's left. Then, all the biggest trees after 20 years."

He said Mr. Raymond estimated, in all, "it would bring the hospital $200,000."

Unfortunately, destiny intervened. In 2003, the hospital — in operation since 1919 — closed. Its properties have been sold off, though efforts to reuse the hospital building have failed.

The trees still stand.

At first Mr. Center didn't recall the species, but as we conversed, the name came to him: Japanese Larch.

He said he remembers because when the project was announced "two or three people called saying 'What are the Japane nese doing here?"

A quick Google search turned up this overview of the tree from The Morton Arboretum in Lisle, Illinois.

"Japanese larch is a sun-loving deciduous conifer native to Japan," it said. "The 70-foot high pyramidal trees has slender, pendulous branches, and clusters of bright green needles that turn a golden yellow in the fall before dropping. Mature bark is a scaly reddish brown."

The American Conifer Society writes, "Japanese larch is an important tree in forestry plantations, being grown throughout central and northern Japan (north to Hokkaido), and also widely in northern Europe, particularly Ireland and Britain. The wood is tough and durable, used for general construction work. Small larch poles are widely used for fencing."

Mr. Center said of their planting of the Japanese larches in Cambridge two decades ago, "We did it for two reasons — for the money for the hospital and to keep erosion from happening" on the hillside.

GF Hospital has region's 2nd highest Covid inpatient count have 198 total in house and last year on this date we had 130." Assuming 40 Covid patients, that's still 28 more patients in-house this year, "about a 20 percent increase," he said.

Based on prior years, the hospital "budgeted" or planned for, say, 130 patients in the surgical unit. Monday they had about 150. In the ER, they budgeted for 112 and saw between 120 and 130 patients. (The Cancer Center number of patients is one area where patient count holds is steady.)

Why the overall surge isn't clear. Most likely, Mr. Agnew said, "People postponed taking care of themselves, they waited too long and now they have to be admitted."

Mr. Agnew says, "If you look at the numbers, Warren and Washington Counties are a hot spot in the Capital Region.

"We need to encourage people to not go to work sick. It's great that sports are happening, but then there's a lot more travel. All combined: Larger events, letting our guard down. We want to get the message out: Continue to be vigilant. Social distance, masks, get vaccinated."

"We're at the highest we've ever been, with more inpatients than in the initial days and the second surge December to January 2020-2021," said Ms. Alycon, who is a clinical epidemiologist.

Glens Falls Hospital has the second highest number of Covid inpatients in the region, behind only St. Peter's in Albany, Mr. Agnew said.

"Beds are not a concern," said Mr. Agnew, noting they're certified for upwards of some 390 beds and they consider 200 a high census.

"We've modified a couple of wings" to accommodate additional ICU patients as needed." They've added units to isolate

That's only part of the big surge in hospital admissions

Covid patients from other populations. "We have capacity," Mr. Agnew says. "The issue is staffing." He said that even before vaccination mandates — all staff must be vaccinated or lose their positions — "we had shortages of clinical staff and nursing staff. Combine that with high acuity — very sick people, and not all even Covid, though Covid numbers are high now. At one point we had 200 people in the hospital, including 20 Covid cases." He laments, "It's the perfect storm."

Mr. Agnew said Glens Falls Hospital has 38 unvaccinated staff members on unpaid administrative leave. The hospital is "on the bubble" with another 48 who sought religious exemptions. Courts have denied them, "so there's a good shot we'll lose some more folks."

The losses, he said, come "across the board," from nursing to environmental services to the cafeteria.

With about 2,500 employees, Mr. Agnew says. "Every last one is important. We don't want to lose a single one. But we do support the vaccination mandate, so — we continue to recruit, and we are using agency nurses where we need to."

The hospital's Nov. 1 job fair yielded 25 new hires, Mr. Agnew said — but they

Changes seen in how Covid presents itself

"With each successive wave, Covid has been presenting differently," Hillary Alycon, Glens Falls Hospital's Director of Infection Prevention, tells The Chronicle.

"Initially, it looked like stroke or a heart attack. Then in spring, it presented as a respiratory illness."

"Last summer, people were coming in with altered mental states. Now we see people who are hypoxic, short of breath, lowered oxygen levels."

That's the serious cases who are hospitalized, she notes.

In the community, Ms. Alycon says breakthrough cases might look like a bad cold or allergies.

Get tested, she advises. "Leave no stone unturned when it comes to this thing, because it's so contagious."

Ms. Alycon says with Covid, one sick person generally impacts seven others. "You need to isolate sooner than later," she said. —Cathy DeDe

Who's hospitalized with Covid?

Who's in Glens Falls Hospital for Covid during the ongoing surge?

About 60 to 68 percent of the 40+ daily inpatients are unvaccinated, hospital officials told The Chronicle.

The most seriously ill have generally been people who were not vaccinated, and those who are highly at risk with other comorbidities (negative health factors).

Hospitalized Covid patients range from 24 to 97 years old, "a 70-year spread," said Hillary Alycon, the hospital's Director of Infection Prevention.

Ray Agnew, the hospital's Vice President of Community Engagement, says, "We've had the stories of a couple of young folks who succumbed. Both were not vaccinated. That should be a warning for folks."

He added, "As more people are vaccinated, there are more breakthrough cases, but they are less severe and they are survivable." —Cathy DeDe have 200 openings, "across disciplines." What's the impact of the staffing shortage? "So far we have not cancelled services like we did last spring," Mr. Agnew said. "On some occasions, when we have a high census of 200 or more patients, we have had to delay or postpone a procedure that would require an overnight stay."

Mr. Agnew says: "The uptick in Covid cases, in addition to high volumes of inpatients, high acuity and staffing issues have made it difficult, but Glens Falls Hospital continues to stay open and provide services..We are open for business."

"If you are not feeling well, don't hesitate to come to the ER or call your physician. We are here for you."

Mr. Alycon sees Covid fatigue as a factor. "A lot of individuals, they're just done with it," she said. "We're seeing that as some of the spread. They're waiting five, eight, nine days to get tested. The sheer volume is very real."

"There are two universes," she says. "One is the health care people, We're seeing it's not done. But in the community, we want our lives back to normal. If you don't live and breathe it every day..." you're likely less vigilant.

Ms. Alycon says that from an epidemiological perspective, she expected the pandemic to last two years. "But it's really

Is more patients good for business? It's tricky

Is more patients good for the hospital's bottom line? It's a tricky subject, even to ask aloud.

"It's good for us to have a regular influx of patients," acknowledges Ray Agnew, Glens Falls Hospital's Vice President of Community Engagement.

But it's complicated because "the high acuity and high census, with staffing shortages," results in the hospital's "needing to hire agency nurses."

Mr. Agnew said, "We are cautiously optimistic on volume, but it's expensive to care for people, and hire agency staff, so it can be somewhat of a wash." —Cathy DeDe about human behavior now. It's not biology or the pathology of disease."

Ms. Alycon urges: "If you're eligible for the booster, get it. If you can be vaccinated, do it. If you're sick, stay home. In public spaces, mask."

A new ad campaign jointly created by Warren and Washington Counties' Public Health departments, Behan Communications, Hudson Headwaters Health Network and Glens Falls Hospital urges Covid precautions and especially getting vaccinated. "It's absolutely" because of the spiking numbers, Mr. Agnew says.

A few months back, the numbers of Covid patients admitted to Glens Falls Hospital were typically in the teens, with one or two at a time in ICU, Mr. Agnew said.

"Our high point has been about 12 at any point," he said. "Now we're over 40, with 7 in the ICU. Considering there are 16 ICU beds, that's busy."

Free Thanksgiving dinners, in GF & Argyle: Take out & delivery only

Chronicle Managing Editor Cathy DeDe writes: Glens Falls's 38th annual Hometown Thanksgiving meal will be by pick-up or delivery only, no dine-in for the second year in a row, because of continuing Covid precautions.

Last year, they made "a little over 1,000 deliveries — a record high." They also provided another 400 take-out meals.

Pick-up will be noon to 2 p.m., an hour earlier than last year "based on demand," organizers tell The Chronicle.

Meals will be handed out under a large white tent in the parking lot of Christ Church United Methodist, corner of Bay and Washington Streets in Glens Falls.

"We ask that everyone bring something to carry their meals in," such as a bag or box, organizers said, also urging masks and six-foot social distancing.

Call Meg to arrange delivery, to volunteer or offer donations: 518-232-8896. E-mail hometownthanksgiving@gmail.com, or see the "Hometown Thanksgiving" Facebook page.

On the menu: Turkey and fixings, mashed potatoes, stuffing, gravy and dinner rolls, and desserts.

Hometown Thanksgiving was founded in 1984 to bring people together,.

Argyle and surrounding communities' 27th F.E.A.S.T. Community Thanksgiving Day dinner returns, following a year's Covid hiatus. It will be by takeout and delivery only, Thursday, Nov. 25.

It's free. Call Patty Hammond to make donations, or to make reservations for pickup or home delivery: (518) 638-8362.

Volunteers, call Tim to help prepare or deliver meals: 692-7246.

Pickups, by drive through only, are at 11:30 and 11:45 a.m. Drivers will arrive at 10:30 a.m. to begin deliveries.

The traditional roast turkey dinner typically includes dressing, mashed potatoes, gravy, cranberry sauce, coleslaw, corn, butternut squash, rolls and home-made pies.

Hopscotch with Mommy!

I played Hopscotch. My mommy played with me. I went first. I dropped a rock and hopped over the number with it. Then it was mommy's turn.

Magic Forest with family

My favorite thing that I did this summer was that I really liked going to Magic Forest. I get to go there for free because my aunt and cousins work there! Also I loved going to the beach. It was so much fun. We went every week for two weeks. I loved riding my scooter with my cousins and riding my bike! We went to get ice cream. It was so much fun!

Baseball games

My favorite thing I did this summer was play baseball games with my friends. For example,

I play All Stars in the summer and my whole team is very good. We played a tournament for Queensbury and won, so that was the highlight of All Stars. Then after we won the tournament we were super happy about winning and we were going to explode!

Fort with friend

My favorite thing I did this summer was building a fort in the woods with my friend. We went to find different sticks to use and rope to hold the trees together. We used a lot of ideas to make it work. We need to work on it some more. We heard birds, and it smelled good like the outdoors. It was a hot and sunny day. We used rocks to hold the sticks in place. We had a lot of fun, and after we went to get ice cream.

Walter Trout!

Chronicle Managing Editor Cathy DeDe writes: Packed house, killer show by cream of the crop blues guitarist Walter Trout at the Strand Theater in Hudson Falls Sunday afternoon, Nov. 14. Our photographer Andrzej Pilarczyk catches the “heat” of this road-worn, very much still-engaged former member of Canned Heat, the embodiment of the “face-melting” guitar riff. Another Strand audience-artist love-fest from center stage to back of the balcony.
