Unveiled: Classical redo of 220 Glen

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

After a three-year rebuild still in progress, 220 Glen Street — the former Achenbach Jewelry store — emerged last week transformed as a landmark presence decked out with a mahogany doorway, gas flame outdoor light fixtures, copper front and a classic up-lit, down-lit facade of cleansed brick, stone, slew of new windows and much more. It's the project of Chuck and Jennifer Gohn, executed by builder Rick Chase, carpenter Denis Mullins and team. Mr. Gohn is the president of insurance agencies Associates of Glens Falls and Loomis & LaPann. Mrs. Gohn oversaw the design, working with architect Ethan Hall. The insurance agencies will continue to operate in their long-time home, the next building north, 228 Glen, famous for the century-old clock out front, plus at the renovated, rebuilt 220 Glen. "Next month we hope to start moving people over — maybe six or seven," including himself, Mr. Gohn said. "When we were running out of space,"

Re LG Warrior: 'Time to stop using Native American mascot'

Dear Editor:

Lake George School Board candidates Lisa Doster and Linda Clark have included the school's warrior mascot on their campaign signs. I urge them to visit the websites of regional Native American tribes to inform their view on this issue.

I have two children who graduated from Lake George and am embarrassed to say that while

Calls Diversity Equity policy needless; just follow Golden Rule

Dear Editor:

I respectfully disagree with Mr. Pontacoloni's letter endorsing the "Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion" plan put forth by the Board of Education, at least in its current form and language.

If you take time to read the Lake George School District's
