Hi, Mark,

I read your comments about the wren. [April 29 Chronicle: "I believe it's a Carolina wren."] We have them, too. They nested on our front porch last summer, and at least one was around all winter too. Towards spring, I did see two at one time occasionally. They can be really loud at times.

You might find this free app useful — Merlin Bird ID by Cornell Lab. One section of it is sound ID — when you hear a bird singing, you start the recording, and generally it figures it out quite quickly. You need to

Dear Mark,

As a Glens Falls business owner, I feel a need to add my voice to the "Transportation Hub" discussion.

Glens Falls Hospital CEO talks of now & the future

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

Paul Scimeca, 59, has been Interim CEO of Glens Falls Hospital since Jan. 1. We decided to check in to see how he's doing and what he's thinking.

He's new to the job but not to the hospital, where he's worked for 32 years.

He praised the hospital's personnel — "I am extraordinarily proud of how well, no matter what the challenge is, we take really good care of people" — but also frank as to needed improvements.

When The Chronicle spoke of people who've told us of bad experiences with the Emergency Room, Mr. Scimeca said he's told people jokingly but truly, "I won't retire until that ED is

Was Wing Fest too successful?

By Zander Frost
Chronicle Staff Writer

At first glance, Wing Fest seemed to be a big hit Saturday; a massive turnout, live music, and a beautiful day. But in reality, the event may have been a victim of too much success. Lines were long, wings ran out, and people bought tickets they couldn't use. I was there for over an hour, most of it in line, and didn't eat a single wing. I met friends there — we all arrived late because when we each searched the event the preview within Google incorrectly said "4-7 p.m.," instead of 12-3 p.m. My friends arrived at around 1 p.m., and got in line for vegan "wings" at Birch Bark Eatery. They gave the food a positive review! But they couldn't get any more wings for the rest of the day. I arrived after them, and they warned me not to buy tickets. "We already have way more than we'll be able to spend." We joined a long line to Gourmet Cafe. It was moving at a snail's pace and it was hot, so I walked back to my apartment, changed my shirt and grabbed sparkling waters for my group. When I returned 10 minutes later I expected us to be maybe 15-20 minutes from the booth. Instead, my group was walking towards me. "They ran out." We gave up and left the event. Saturday proved that there is a significant appetite for WingFest. People want to be out! And it was a beautiful day! But any event in Glens Falls needs to be prepared to handle a crowd.

Nancy Turner, Glens Falls Collaborative Wing Fest committee co-chair said, "I'm hoping the long lines this year are not going to scare people away for next year, because we're growing, the city is growing, the Collaborative is growing. And we're going through growing pains." She said, "I think it was a very successful event, given the fact that there were so many long lines, so many people showed up. We just had more than we ever could imagine coming to Wing Fest...probably about double our average attendance." Why the big numbers? First, she said, the tribute to the late deejay Mike Du-Bray. "Mike had friends everywhere..." "Then people were coming because it's an outdoor event, and we're coming off two years of a pandemic. And then it ended up being such a beautiful day." The Chronicle asked about attendees' frustrations. "Our hands were kind of tied, there was nothing we could we could do about it," Mrs. Turner said. "There was enough product. But the problem was waiting in the lines. And people were getting tired of it. And I don't blame them." She said they refunded close to 1,000 tickets, and the Bullpen and Davidson Brothers will accept 10 tickets for an order of wings through the weekend. "Somewhere around 20,000 tickets" were sold at $1 a piece. Mrs. Turner said the committee plans to discuss how to improve next year's Wing Fest. "We have to have more restaurants involved. We were turned down by probably a good eight restaurants because they just didn't have the staff." "Maybe we could do cash instead of tickets," she suggested. "We're trying to figure out how to do things better."

LG Park Commission’s Wick defends milfoil
herbicide; calls
LGA ‘inaccurate’

By Zander Frost
Chronicle Staff Writer

The Lake George Association is “coming out with inaccurate and some might describe it as blatant misinformation in an attempt to cause concern and alarm” about the Lake George Park Commission’s decision to approve use of the herbicide ProcellaCOR EC against the invasive milfoil at two locations on Lake George.

That’s what Dave Wick, executive director of the LGPC, tells The Chronicle.

He adamantly defends the plan to use the herbicide, which the Park Commission approved 6-2 and which also has Adirondack Park Agency and Department of Environmental Conservation approval.

He said of the LGA, “There’s different media articles that have picked up largely their talking points, which just are not based in the reality of what the product has gone through for scientific and regulatory review.”

His criticism includes coverage in last week’s Chronicle, which had “quite a bit of deference given to the LGA’s concerns, which are entirely unfounded in fact.”

Last week, The Chronicle printed a list of concerns the LGA said it wanted studied. Mr. Wick responded point by point.

The LGA cited “possible negative impacts to human health.”

Mr. Wick asked, “Have they identified what those health impacts are? Because there aren’t any. There has been no identified health impacts that have been identified with any science the Park Commission has seen.”

Mr. Wick said Jeanine Broughel, “the Product Registration Chief for DEC” told the LGPC that if there were concerns for human health, the product would not have been approved.

Mr. Wick said while ProcellaCOR use started recently, it has been studied for years. “It was developed in 2010. And then spent years being studied and reviewed until everybody signed off on it... was approved in 2018 federally, approved 2019 in New York State.”

The LGA cited “a lack of adequate peer reviewed scientific data regarding potentially adverse impacts to native plants, and organisms that are specific to Lake George.”

Mr. Wick said the reaction of plants, like milfoil, to ProcellaCOR in other states is absolutely relevant to those same plants in Lake George. He said to say otherwise is “such an offensive statement to say about science.” He said, “We know what the plant populations are in Lake George, we have done extensive plant surveys as required by DEC and the Adirondack Park Agency.”

Mr. Wick said the only plant that came up as a concern was native milfoil, but the LGPC found only one plant in the two areas it plans to treat.

Mr. Wick said native milfoil is “ubiquitous throughout Lake George, that’s been documented for years by the Dar-rin Freshwater Institute...If you treat and you kill that one native milfoil plant, is it going to be jeopardizing anything in the lake? And the answer was no.”

The LGA cited “Concern that intense, rapid and concentrated nutrient loading from herbicide- treated and decomposing milfoil would cause significant algal growth and increase the risk of harmful algal blooms.”

“That’s one of my favorites, because

LGPC's Dave Wick: Herbicide plan safe; LGA ignores science

that's knowingly wrong. And they know that's wrong," Mr. Wick said. He said not using ProcellaCOR leads to far more nutrients being released into the lake.

He said one plant in Blair's Bay grows to eight feet tall and three acres in size and then dies, releasing its nutrients into the water column every year.

He said the Park Commission will treat it with ProcellaCOR, and it will die and not return for at least three years.

"Over three years, you have three acres of eight foot high plants dying year after year after year. Or we can do one treatment, have it die back, let's say it's 20% of the height" and not return, Mr. Wick said.

"What do you think is going to release more nutrients into the water?" he said.

The LGA cited "the likely spread of the herbicide miles from the proposed testing sites due to the Lake's strong currents."

Mr. Wick said, "I said the other one was my favorite. This is my favorite." The LGPC said a DEC dilution model "estimates no detection within a very small fraction of the 'miles' noted in the LGA statement. This is backed up by dozens of ProcellaCOR treatments and subsequent modeling, including Lake Winnepesaukee, which is a public drinking water supply."

The LGA cites "concerns about how long the chemical will remain in the Lake, and the fact that it eventually breaks down into chemicals that are as toxic as the parent."

"Absolutely false and inaccurate," Mr. Wick said. He said ProcellaCOR breaks down into much less toxic components.

The LGPC said EPA found "the relative toxicity of the transformation products on SAVs: florpyrauxifen-acid was 30x less toxic, benzyl-hydroxy was 1,700x less toxic, hydroxy-acid was 11,400x less toxic."

Mr. Wick said, "It is a plant growth hormone that I guess you can call toxic. It's toxic to the plant, but not to human health."

He also emphasized that the amount of chemical used is small. "The seven parts per billion equates to one drop in a backyard swimming pool. Take an eyedropper and put one drop into it. That is the dosage rate of ProcellaCOR in Lake George."

"Remember that 97.5% percent of that one drop is inert ingredients. It's only 2.5% of that drop is active ingredients."

The LGA cited "the likelihood that the herbicide's projected effectiveness will be reduced by the Lake's strong currents since the manufacturer clearly states its product performs best in 'slow moving/quiet waters with little or no continuous outflow..."

Mr. Wick said any aquatic herbicide in New York State requires a dilution model.

"We had to go out and do all the underwater topography and figure out the volume. And then the way the applicator has to judge the dosage is based on the volume of water."

"They say, okay, based on this area, it's going to be two foot deep here, it's going to be 20 feet deep here, follow this exact, very specific protocol. And that is DEC's conservative estimate of where the product may be diluted out to a point of zero."

"It shows nothing, nothing whatsoever, like what the LGA is saying, and the [Adirondack] Council and everybody else now that has hopped on the bandwagon. It doesn't reflect reality by any stretch whatsoever."

Mr. Wick said ProcellaCOR use on Glen Lake, Saratoga Lake and Minerva Lake confirm "that the state's dilution modeling is representative and accurate because outside of those zones, they can find 0.0 parts per billion of that product."

The torrent of big stories

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

The story I'd prefer to focus on this week is that our Managing Editor Cathy DeDe's Lake George Prom video that she posted on our Facebook page went viral! Tuesday evening at 9:40 p.m., as I write this column, it has 145,000 views and 410,440 people reached! Way to go, Ms. DeDe!

But a bevy of colossal stories broke this week, any one of which would have dominated a news cycle.

• Someone leaked the draft of a decision under which the U.S. Supreme Court would reverse Roe v. Wade, the 1973 decision that established nationally a woman's right to an abortion.

This was a bombshell on two counts:
1. Abortion is the #1 issue for many people — on both sides — those who see it as “my body, my choice,” and those who see it as killing babies. It's incendiary.

2. The leaking of an internal Supreme Court draft, which Chief Justice John Roberts confirmed as authentic, is a breach of such proportion that it's one more indication that no holds are barred; more proof it's war.

If Democrats needed an issue to rev up a dispirited base and drive them to the polls, here it is. But there's an opposite energy, too. Does it change November?

• The Biden Administration is establishing a “Disinformation Governance Board” in The Department of Homeland Security. To my mind, it's something right out of George Orwell's novel 1984 or imposed by China, Russia or any totalitarian state. When government dictates what is and isn't Truth, it's a direct threat to the freedoms our nation is founded on. Is the American public okay with this?

• Governor Hochul named Congressman Antonio Delgado her new Lieutenant Governor, after Brian Benjamin was indicted for corruption and resigned. The Democratic Legislature changed the law so Gov.

Hochul could excise Benjamin's name from the ballot. It's a high-profile step-up for Rep. Delgado; Republicans contend it extracts him from a re-election race he'd lose.

• New York's Court of Appeals narrowly (4-3) struck down the Democrat-drawn Congressional redistricting as partisan and unconstitutional.

Now a court appointee will draw the lines instead. Will Glens Falls, Queensbury, Moreau rejoin Rep. Stefanik's district? An upshot is that the June 28 primary is postponed until August for the Congressional nominations — and for the State Senate, too.

Now there's an effort to postpone the primary for Governor into August too. Would that facilitate Andrew Cuomo's trying to reclaim the job? Albany's Times-Union ran an article speculating it might.

• Upstate New York leads the nation in Covid cases, and Saratoga County has it worst. Few deaths, limited surge in hospitalizations. Reaction depends on one's predisposition. No big deal or batten the hatches.

Thanks Zander for Elon Musk view; defend Free Speech

him to have jumped onboard the mainstream narrative against Musk, but thrilled about the entire article he authored. I found it well written, factual and without public opinion which has made me twitch lately! He even has a more positive attitude about Elon Musk's plans than I do!

Did you know this administration just 2 days ago came out with their plans to have the Department of Homeland Security form a Disinformation Governance Board? In addition to asking Elon Musk to be formally questioned by the Congress about his Twitter plans?

Legislation is already being written against this new 'board.' I just wish it would be unanimously fought against by every politician and mainstream media.

As you know, I support the First Amendment rights to the U.S. Constitution — Free Speech and a Free Press as vital as the Framers who wrote it centuries ago. This administration has made many hypocritical statements claiming they do support these rights.

Their actions, however, and the ongoing case/appeal to extradite Julian Assange prove otherwise.

Again, thank you for publishing important information concerning the frightening state of the First Amendment rights in this nation and please mention to your son that I applaud his efforts to publish a positive take on the possibilities of obtaining Free Speech on Twitter. Excellent article!

Carolina wren nested on her porch; use of Cornell Merlin Bird ID

give it your location when you install it, so it knows what birds are likely to be there. And it can ID more than one bird's song at a time. With each recording, you get a list of the bird(s) it recognized that time, and links to info about each species and Cornell's recordings of their songs and calls. And it works offline, all self-contained in your phone.

Not sure when I last saw one [Carolina wren], but my Merlin recordings include it on 4/23, 4/22, and farther back. I don't do the sound ID all the time, just when I hear something singing and the phone is nearby.

Doing the Cornell FeederWatch weekly bird count, I reported seeing one or two almost every week from November to March. Doing that project, you note and report everything you see over a 2 day period each week — species and maximum number seen at one time in you yard. <https://feederwatch.org/about/project-overview/>

Birds she sees in Fort Ann; touts May 14 Global bird count

Hi Mark!

Loved your scoop about the Carolina Wren! Pretty bird, and your description of his call is wonderful! I hope you get to hear, and maybe see him again as he travels around. We watch the birds here in Fort Ann all the time, and have seen a large number of different species over the years and seasons. I, too, am "hooked" on a few of our birds and watch for them to return as the seasons change.

Some we've come to know are signs when spring (or winter) is on the way. Contrary to what many think — Robins aren't a sign of spring — they're here all year! We had a flock of about 20 of them during the winter in the snow!

Our spring sign is the Red-Winged Blackbird. When we spot them, we know the seasons have shifted!

My favorite bird is the Indigo Bunting - a gorgeous blue bird that we've seen the past two late spring and summers. He hangs out with the goldfinches, and is usually alone, but we have seen his mate as well. He's been sort of my guardian angel bird during these challenging couple of years, and we hope to see him again this year.

A new one we just spotted this past week is the Eastern Towhee. He was here for about 3 days, and now gone. I'm guessing we were just a stopover on his way to his permanent summer residence.

I wanted to send along the information about the May 14 Global Big Day bird count: <https://ebird.org/news/global-big-day-2022>. It is a free worldwide event, run by Team eBird at the Cornell Lab, during which anyone can record birds seen in their area to help track migration and species found in different places.

People from around the world participate virtually, and it gives a picture of the many varieties of birds found around the world. Maybe your readers would be interested and might like to participate. It is easy — and free!

I've been recording bird counts daily on the Cornell Lab ebird site for a few years — fun to keep track and see how the bird environment changes. And I agree with you — I'm sure climate changes and environmental challenges do impact the birds that we see from year to year. Thanks for sharing your bird sighting! Take care and keep watching those birds!

GF Hospital CEO: New Emergency Department is important need

fixed. I mean, it is the one area in our organization that we have to do better. I am not proud of the experience for patients there, particularly for that behavioral health population. We have to fix it....The quality of care is there. But the experience is not what we want it to be."

Mr. Scimeca detailed some of the challenges the Emergency Department faces.

"One of the biggest challenges that we're facing right now is the variability, the volatility of volume, which is something that we've never seen before...."

"Hospitals used to be fairly predictable in terms of their volume."

Now, though, "there could be a day in the ED that has 90 patients and the next day has 150. And...because most of the admissions come through the ED, the same thing happens with our inpatient volume — we can swing 40, 50 patients in 48 hours. That is new. And that's not unique to us. A lot of hospitals are seeing that volatility."

Mr. Scimeca said, "I think some of it has to do with delayed care. I think some of it has to do with people trying to manage things in other settings before coming to the hospital. So it is delayed."

"And I will tell you, the patients who are here today, they are very sick. Not COVID, but they're very ill, the acuity is very high. So yeah, we've had moments and occasions in the ED where the experience is not what we want it to be."

On April 15, the day The Chronicle interviewed Mr. Scimeca, he said the hospital had 205 patients in beds, "where we budget to be around 140-ish."

He said, "People are sick...People say, 'Oh, my gosh, you have so much COVID in the hospital.' It's not — 10 of those were COVID. We had a little baby boom, you know, the Snuggery was busy. Behavioral Health was very busy. Med surg [surgery] was very busy. It was busy all throughout the house.

"And when we get into those surges... people will work extra, they will take on shifts. And our staff is just extraordinarily resilient to rise to the occasion when things get busy."

In the Emergency Department, Mr. Scimeca said, "we see a significant number of behavioral health patients...."

"And one of the things that has happened over the last couple of years is many organizations have chosen to limit the number of behavioral health patients that they see. This is particularly true for, for example, adolescent and pediatric inpatient facilities."

"So we have a child who comes in and needs advanced inpatient care — we don't do inpatient Behavioral Health here for adolescents and pediatrics. If we need to find them a bed, that's a challenge...."

"We just had a patient here for two full

'Glens Falls needs an acute care hospital'; sees Albany Med link being validated

"I will tell you that personally, as the leader of the organization, I am optimistic about the future" of Glens Falls Hospital, says its interim CEO Paul Scimeca.

"One of the things that was again, reinforced by the last couple of years, is that there needs to be an acute care hospital here in Glens Falls...."

"Today, we have 195 patients. Where are they going to go?...We know that there's not 195 beds available elsewhere in the Capital District, we see that data every single day, it is tight. This past January, when things were really, really tight, we were gridlocked in the Capital District."

"We had three patients one day — I'll never forget — we had three patients, we needed to find a bed for, a higher level of care. And the only place that had beds was up in Burlington."

"And we talked to the three patients and their families. One agreed to go. The other two said, 'I'm not going up to Burlington, I'll take my chances here or I'll wait for a bed to open up either here or in Albany.'"

"And for me, that was a reinforcement that our decision to affiliate with Albany Med was the right decision, because that's where we relate to, that's where people go to when they need a higher level of care."

"And so what's the long game? The long game is being part of a system. Independent hospitals, there are very few these days who are able to exist independent and certainly not one that is in a rural area."

"So, our long game is continue to develop and work in partnership with a system, to look at services, to look at our configurations, to figure out long term strategies for success with workforce, to grow our own, to recruit our own."

"It's going to be a combination of a lot of things, but the long game is, as being part of the system, how do we really take best advantage of that for all of us collectively involved, so we can be assured that when patients in this region need care, it's here for them."

10 CEO: Now we know better how to build Emergency Dept.

weeks before we could find them a bed. That's two weeks in the ED — because we're not able to admit them, and we can't send them out.”

“We also, not this week, but the week before, we started off Monday morning with 19 behavioral health patients in the ED. That's with our adult unit full — 19. So that creates challenges in the ED.”

(Last week Ellis Hospital in Schenectady announced the temporary closure of its inpatient adolescent mental health unit due to the severe shortages of children's mental health workers.)

Mr. Scimeca said Glens Falls Hospital's Emergency Department also struggles because “it was built in the 70s...It is not built to accommodate the kind of care that has to happen now.”

On the upside, he said that “in retrospect...the best thing that happened is that we didn't renovate the ED three or four years ago, because we would have had to change a lot of that on the fly for COVID, because the way people were building ED's was not going to work during a pandemic. So now we know that....”

“One of the things that I have tasked our team here with is...we've got to fix the ED, because those experiences, some of them are just driven by the environment we're trying to operate in.”

The Chronicle asked: Wasn't there state aid Glens Falls Hospital received several years ago to build a new emergency department at the hospital's west entry?

“We did,” Mr. Scimeca replied. “We received about $19 million in state funding to support a bunch of things. But at the end of the day, it was really to support building a new ED.”

“And reality was, even with that $19 million of support, we couldn't afford it.”

“We were also pretty fortunate. We went to the state and said, Hey, this is the position we're in. Can we use it for something else? And the state was great to say yeah, you can actually use it for other capital expenses, and we're actual-

‘Interim CEO’ Scimeca would love to have the job permanently

When Dianne Shugrue announced her decision last August to retire as Glens Falls Hospital's CEO, the Board of Governors promoted Chief Operating Officer Paul Scimeca to be the interim CEO as of Jan. 1, 2022.

Mr. Scimeca, 59, has spent 32 years working for Glens Falls Hospital.

Does he expect to become permanent chief executive officer?

“I hope to be,” he replied. “This is my heart. This is my community.”

“I love the job, because I am so passionate about this organization. And I ly using it to pay down some of our debt.

“So we're literally getting the last of that $19 million of funding coming in next month....Frankly, it puts us in a better financial position, so that the time comes to go finance the ED project, we'll be in a better position.”

Once they've decided what they want in a new Emergency Department, said Mr. Scimeca, “then we'll figure out how much it's going to cost and how we're going to pay for it. And it will probably be a combination of we'll look for some grant support, we'll look for some state support, we will look to the community for philanthropy support. They've always been extraordinarily generous to us.

“We'll probably take some money out of the bank, and we'll probably take out a big loan. But we got to fix the ED, because those experiences, some of them are just driven by the environment we're trying to operate in.”

Says Covid shows ‘nothing replaces care at the bedside’

“We've learned a lot in the last two years,” says Glens Falls Hospital Interim CEO Paul Scimeca. “One thing that we've learned is nothing replaces the caregiver at the bedside.”

He says, “Pre-COVID, there was definitely lots of discussions about, what really will the role of hospitals be going forward? Will a hospital really become just an ED [Emergency Department] with maybe an intensive care unit and an OR [Operating Room] attached?”

“And I think one thing that we all discovered, or we knew, but was reinforced in the last two years, when there are challenges faced in our public health world, people turn to hospitals.”

“They came here when they needed to get testing, they needed to get a vaccine, they needed monoclonal antibody treatment, they needed intensive care, they came to the hospital.”

“That's what they knew. That's the safety net for the region. And when that happens, there's nothing that replaces care at the bedside.”

GF Hospital: ‘Holding our own financially’ but with 83% of patients on Medicare, perpetual challenge

By Mark Frost
Chronicle Editor

Asked how Glens Falls Hospital is doing financially, CEO Paul Scimeca said, “This was a tough first couple of months of the year...driven by two things. One was volume, it is still a volume game. We’re still, even though there’s lots of discussion about paying for value, paying for quality, the majority of the work that we do, particularly since we’re so dependent upon governmental payers, it is volume.

“January and February, when we were in the midst of that last wave of COVID, we saw our volumes were suppressed, both because we had, for example, surgery scheduled, the patient came in to do their pre surgical work-up, they found out they had COVID... we had to cancel the procedure.”

“Sometimes,” he said, “we had providers who became ill, and we had to cancel procedures. So volume was tough in the first couple of months of the year.

“We also were experiencing extraordinarily high labor costs, because, one, with so many of our own staff being ill, under the state law, we were required to continue to pay them — it’s the right thing to do.

“But it adds cost to the organization because we’re also then backfilling that staff with very high cost, contract labor.”

“So first couple of months were tough. March was a better month, we saw the volume start to pick up a little bit, expenses moderated.

“It’s a month to month. We stay very close with a focus on our budget. I think that’s one of the things that’s unique about this organization...

“Our reality is that our patient population that we care for is largely Medicare, Medicaid; very little Medicaid actually, mostly Medicare.

“In fact, 82% of our in-patients are Medicare. That’s hard when Medicare does not cover its costs...”

“We’ve always been in a position where we’ve had to be very fiscally responsible...We’ve never known to be flush with money. That’s not who we are in our region.”

“We know how to be frugal. And that’s continuing now. We continue to hover right above or below break-even. But we’re okay. We’re continuing to hold our own.”

SCHOOL VIEWS

In memory of Cynthia Frost

What do you do to relax?

Fidgets feel good
My favorite thing to do to relax is playing with my Fidgets. And my favorite Fidget is the stress ball It just feels good.

Penelope Stevenson
Gr. 3, Mrs. Trevlakis
Hudson Falls Primary School

Daisey and Netflix
My favorite thing to do to relax is cuddle with my dog Daisey and watch TV on Netflix. Usually I am in my room with comfy clothes on. Also with a warm, cozy blanket and an after school snack. That is why cuddling with my dog and watching TV is my favorite thing to do to relax.

Hailey Dygert
Gr. 4, Ms. Cooper
North Warren Central School

Likes all kinds of music
Something that relaxes me is music. When I am really stressed out I just put my headphones on and lay on my bed. It really distracts me from bad things happening in the world, like Covid-19 and more. Also, music gets me on task. When I am doing homework or studying or doing chores, it makes me get in the moment and do them quicker. One of my favorite things about music is the amount of genres there are, like Hip-Hop, Pop, Rock, Metal, Alternative Rock, Alternative Pop, and more.
What relaxes you? Is it hanging out with friends? Or is it music, like me?

Joey Cantz
Gr. 6, Mrs. Harrison
Oliver Winch Middle School, SGF

Scooter and dogs

My favorite thing to do when I am relaxing is reading a book outside and going for a walk around my street. I also like to build a fort made out of blankets and pillows. Then I take a nap in the fort that I made.

Alivia Combs-Terrio
Gr. 2, Mrs. Heydrick/Ms. Diemer
Queensbury Elementary School

New worlds with books
My favorite thing to do to relax is to read chapter books. It makes me drift into a new world. It makes me think, what if this was happening to me. I feel so many emotions.

NBA video game
My favorite thing to do to relax is to play the game called NBA 2K22. I play in my bedroom when I get home from school. It helps me unwind from all the hard work I do in 6th grade. Playing NBA 2K22 also helps me when I am stressed. It helps take my mind off things. It also gives me something to do on rainy days when I cannot go outside to play basketball.

Zonta: New 'Faire' in City Park, May 7-8

The Zonta Club of Glens Falls offers a new event this weekend replace its annual Country Faire that was traditionally held — for 60 years, they note — on the same weekend as the LARAC June Arts Festival.

The new Crafts & Curiosities Festival will be held in City Park, downtown Glens Falls, this Mother's Day weekend, Saturday and Sunday, May 7 and 8, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

On tap: Displays and sales by 40 vendors, plus children's activities, games and live music.

Zonta is a service club serving local women and children. Several of its traditional fund-raisers were sidelined by COVID, the group said in its release.

That includes the Country Faire, an annual golf tournament, and the craft fair at the Adirondack Balloon Festival.

"By reaching into reserves and appealing to supporters," they continued offering scholarships to local students and grants to non-profits, "albeit at a reduced level," they said.

GF Farmer's Market moves outdoors

The Glens Falls Farmer's Market returns to its outdoor venue at the South Street Pavilion beginning on Saturday, May 7. Hours are 8 a.m.-noon.

Info: glensfallsfarmersmarket.com.

In honor of Mother's Day, there will be a mini cupcake giveaway, hot chocolate and children's activities, pansy giveaway and live music.

Argyle Brewery's unique Fun Run, Sat.

Argyle Brewing Company in Greenwich holds its seventh annual Fun Run to benefit the Cancer Research Institute on Saturday May 7, from 3-5 p.m. Info: argylebrewing.com.

It's a backwards sort of event, they say.

Regardless of difficulty, the idea is to go "from point anywhere to point brewery."

Participants are invited to sign up online at the website and donate at least $10 to the cause. Then: "Set a goal," whether that be a 10-mile run or a walk around the block (or a crawl, skip or even pogo stick ride, they joke) — and plan to arrive at the Brewery in Greenwich at 3 p.m. on Saturday for food, live music and, of course, beer.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Notes by Cathy DeDe

Neal Herr of GF brings new musical 'ZigZag' to HF Strand

Composer-singer-songwriter Neal Herr brings his new, original musical love story Zigzag to The Strand Theatre in Hudson Falls, Friday to Sunday, May 6-8. Info: mystrandtheater.org.

Curtain times are Friday at 7:30 p.m., Saturday at 2 & 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. Tix: $25, $5 off for moms attending with a paying family member on Sunday, Mother's Day.

Zigzag is a romantic comedy featuring 20 of Herr's best relationship songs, he says in press materials, written through a 50-year career.

Zig-zagging back and forth through time, they say, it tells the story of an aging couple, Cowboy and Butterfly, who look back on their young romance, that was complicated by Cowboy's boss, Tender, and Butterfly's abusive manager, Bruce.

Mr. Herr tells The Chronicle, "It's called Zigzag, so expect a lot of zigzags! It plays with age and reflection and romance and the audience's expectations of a romantic musical, and sometimes subverts those."

It's got country music, but also musical theater and more, he says.

"There are definite highs and lows, and the turn-around is welcome. Ultimately, I think it's uplifting, with a message, but you can also think of it as a jukebox musical of all my best relationship songs." He adds that the show is "PG-13," for language, drug use and mature themes. Tix: mystrandtheater.org.

Jim Brock weighs in

industry? Will it be good for the future, both near- and long-term?

As everyone has been learning lately, cars are becoming less industrial in nature and more amenable to computer solutions. Elon Musk, who started PayPal and who is now leading the world in electric vehicles (Tesla), is doing remarkable things with both his car and rocket businesses (Space X).

Tesla vehicles are now self-driving and Space X is using computers to make soft landings possible for its rockets — and therefore cheaper to use.

Moreover, outside of Musk, long-haul truck transportation is confident enough in its self-driving technology that it is going to be using self-driving trucks almost immediately (according to a 60 Minutes report).

When I was on the Common Council a few years ago, Mayor Diamond and I looked at having parking lots on the outskirts of the City. The idea was that employees, but not customers, would be able to park in one of these parking lots, take a bus into the City to work, and in effect free up land for new businesses or for reduced parking congestion, particularly at the Elm Street parking lot.

Says, yes, we have a parking problem, need enforcement

To the Editor:

How vehemently and vocally IN FAVOR do you want me to be?"

To say there is no parking problem in the downtown Glens Falls area, or that it is only a problem when the Cool Insuring Arena has events, is somewhat obtuse in reality. By far the most commented on subject with people wishing to interact with the downtown area is parking, and the lack of finding places to park. As a business in the downtown area, this is very frustrating.

Is it possible that it is more of a parking enforcement problem, than a traditional parking problem? If you were to tour Glen St. between the circle and the library, you would find the same vehicles parked for 8-12 hours in the same parking spots, day after day, Monday thru Saturday.
