Bonacio dives into redo of Hot Shots; Sandy's; incubator

By Cathy DeDe
Chronicle Managing Editor

Developer Sonny Bonacio's team has started work on renovating the former Sandy's Clam Bar, Hot Shots and "incubator" buildings at South and Elm Streets, key components of Glens Falls's $10-million Downtown Revitalization Initiative.

"What you're seeing," Bonacio spokesperson Larry Novik told The Chronicle, "is the beginning of Phase One, the Sandy's building, which is 41 South Street, the former Hot Shots building at 45 South Street, and 36 Elm.

"All three of those buildings will be renovated more or less at the same time over the

Streaking raged 50 years ago

By Maury Thompson
Special to The Chronicle

A 50th anniversary at SUNY Adirondack in Queensbury earlier this year passed quietly without re-enactment. And we're glad of it.

"The rage of streaking scooted through the Adirondack Community College campus Thursday as the junior college joined the ranks of institutions across America which have been 'liberated' by nude runs," The Post-Star reported on March 8, 1974. About 80 people

Jim Brock: County Supervisors did get raises since 2015

Dear Mark,

Last week, the Chronicle cited Warren County as claiming the Supervisors haven't had a raise since 2015.

This is not true. As you can see below, there have been only four years when the Supervisors haven't given themselves a raise.

What is troubling about this raise is that there are people working full-time to make $20,000 per year and only get
